

he Layered Self

Linking Motivation and Intervention in Modern Analytic Technique

CMPS Annual Conference December 6, 2014

Sara Sheftel, PhD, LP

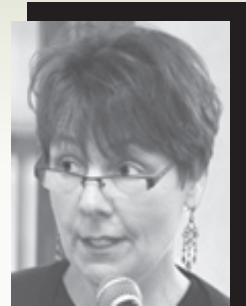

MORNING SESSION: 9:00AM-NOON is devoted to the early dynamics of psychic motivation. Josie Oppenheim will speak about the use of metaphor to maintain fantasied connections to our earliest objects. Sara Sheftel will present a paper about the desire for exclusive possession as an underlying motivation in individuals and groups.

AFTERNOON SESSION: 2:00-3:15PM will focus on clinical interventions to work with the multi-layered minds of patients. Barbara D'Amato offers techniques for use with adolescent patients, who vacillate between primitive and more integrated functioning. Faye Newsome argues for the willingness of the analyst to function as the "bad" object in clinical practice.

Q. & A. SESSIONS with audience and speakers follows both morning (11:15-Noon) and afternoon (3:30-4:15) sessions.

WORKSHOPS (4:30-5:30PM) led by CMPS faculty conclude the day's agenda. Participants are encouraged to attend these groups where they will be able to talk about their impressions, thoughts, and feelings in a more intimate setting.

A Wine and Cheese Social concludes the day.

Barbara D'Amato
Psy.D., LP

Josie Oppenheim, MA
LP, NCPsyA

Faye Newsome, MA, LP

cmpps

Center for Modern Psychoanalytic Studies Annual Conference

Saturday, December 6, 2014 — 9:00 AM-5:00 PM

NYU's Eisner & Lubin Auditorium, 60 Washington Square South, New York City