

Syllabus
PT 151b Basic Psychoanalytic Theory: Part II
R. García Fall 2018

Wed. 7:30-9:30
CMPS: 30 Clock Hours
NYGSP: 2 Credits

Course Description

Core psychoanalytic concepts of the Structural Theory are examined: dual-drives; the repetition compulsion; the tripartite mind; aggression; masochism; anxiety; sexual development; and revisions to dream-theory. These concepts inform current psychoanalytical clinical practice.

Objectives

The student will be able to:

- define basic psychoanalytic concepts and theoretical constructs as they appear in the literature; and
- explain theoretical advances that have occurred over time and the nature of differences in theoretical positions and how technique evolves from theoretical positions.

Basis of Evaluation

(1) Attendance: A minimum of ten (10) sessions' attendance is a requirement for receiving credit for the course.

(2) Paper: The paper consists of a discussion of one of the core concepts covered in the course. The student chooses the concept and writes up the discussion by answering three questions according to guidelines that will be provided on the first day of class. The paper should be a minimum of 15 pages. Because the paper concerns a concept of the student's choosing, from among those discussed in class, it functions as a natural extension of classroom work. The paper is also a requirement for receiving credit for the course.

(3) Logs: A minimum of ten logs (10) are required for credit for the class. Logs describe either the student's experience in class, serve as a commentary on the readings, or both. The logs should be submitted weekly, by email, and preferably before the beginning of the next session. Email to raulagarciaphd@gmail.com.
